Statistical analysis and visualization were performed using R 3.0.1 and its extensions. The R packages rgl and corrplot were used to visualize the correlation between HbA_{1c} and quantitative phenotypes. Multiple regression analysis was used to test whether the rs11545078 was related to measures of insulin resistance and/or beta-cell function and whether it could differentiate glycemic status. For the multiple regression analysis, the presence or absence of the minor allele was used as an additive explanatory variable, and the estimated effect sizes are reported along with their 95% confidence intervals. To find the most parsimonious model, the effects of the rs11545078 were adjusted for age, sex, and BMI. We also performed a differential expression analysis using the DeSeq2 package on R 3.0.1. The beta coefficients of the linear models (phenotypes multiplied by genotype) were reported along with the 95% CI and P-values.
