Category:Soundtrack competition Category:Audio engineering Category:Audio production? Can you execute your vision and make everyone you work with appreciate what it is you are doing? Can you hold your own and be a team player? Do you have what it takes to cope with the hardships and trade-offs that must be made when taking on a vision and a team in a small organization? Did you have passion for what you were doing? Did you have passion for your work? Are your decisions based on what is in the best interest of the users, or of the organization you were part of? Did you have passion for your work? Will I be able to get a new job out of this role? Can I successfully make the same level of contribution to your organization regardless of the group I'm in? Are you still committed to this vision even though the team doesn't share your passion for it? Do you have the skills to change course when the need arises? In the open source world, are you willing to adapt your vision to be in line with the reality of the project? Is there a value in being part of the "academy of the damned"? Can you take a hit? If you hired me, do you think I'd be worth your while? Can I work well with a team of different backgrounds? In the corporate world, can I collaborate with other business units? Has the cost of living affected your opportunities? What will your long-term incentives be? How will you know if you are successful? In the public sector, are you volunteering for me? Could you accept a salary lower than what you are expecting? Have I thought of everything? Have you thought of everything? I hope you found the answers to these questions to be liberating. You won't have to think any more about these issues for yourself. You will know, by your own inner compass if you are ready for more. If you are, there's only one more question. If you are hiring for a similar role and if you wish to bring me in, then I would appreciate knowing what you are seeking. Merry Christmas ~ Day 11 While waiting for Christmas to arrive, I thought it would be fun to share 3da54e8ca3
