What's New in the Prog Media Server?

Prog Media Server is a ProgDVB module that allows you to broadcast the information onto your local network or to watch several channels on the same computer simultaneously. The program allows one or multiple channels to be selected and broadcast in the chosen resolution. The broadcasting is controlled with a single bar, which is the control of the program. The program is controlled through the standard media bar used for television and the computer has no video card or soundcard and the program doesn't have any. The program displays the information you enter on your screen in real time. The program can change the channel and the resolution depending on what you have chosen, you can select either H.264 (for streaming) or F.MPEG (for recording). The program is programmed with no preset channel (the program automatically changes the channel when it detects a new frequency). The program is distributed as an exe file that can be run from a CD, DVD or USB flash drive. The program lets you broadcast TV and radio, the information is added as text and are displayed on the screen, you can select one or more channels and display them on the screen. The TV programs are not compatible with the programs of VLC Media Player. You can record the broadcasted information, you can choose between VBR, VBR 2 or VBR 3 modes. The program can broadcast the selected channel and can be used to display the name of the channel on the screen in real time. The program can be used to broadcast the chosen channel (which can also be changed) on the local network and other computers can access it as a stream (which is the H.264 format). The program has a timer, the program displays the time remaining for the broadcast. The program has the ability to store data on the computer for a specified time and make a copy of the information. It can also change the frequency on the frequency list automatically. You can choose the number of minutes that can be stored in the program and this can be changed in the configuration settings. The program is totally free to use. The program lets you view all the information about the broadcast (which can be selected). You can select one or more channels, depending on what you have chosen, which will be displayed in the list of channels. The program lets you use the DVR function to record broadcasted TV and radio. You can record TV programs on a hard disk and you can also record radio programs. You can record the program on a folder (can be changed) and it can also be stored as a file (H.264).
