What's new in Expeditions: Viking - Soundtrack And Art Book:

Synopsis Book Description In the pantheon of great Nordic mythologies, pre-Christian, Icelandic, Viking myths are not widely known and certainly were not much written about. Although there is evidence that they existed, the writings that exist date only from the 14th century, and there are also few images from the period that survived in post-Christian times. They are stories of scary-looking giants with peaked helmets, which in combination with their spellbinding sagas, have led to them being written off as folktales. For this project AS Gardi teamed up with graphic designer Björgvin Hlevgardur to create a book containing most of the information from the myths that remains available to us, including illustrations, written accounts, research, and quotes. The result is a book that does not only master these darker pre-Christian tales, but also ]]>FileHippo.comFri, 01 Mar 2007 18:41:34 +0000[Treatment of hepatitis B in patient with diabetes mellitus]. Hepatitis B is a major health care problem, especially in patients with diabetes mellitus. The prevalence of anti-HBc-positive sera in Poland in 1997 was 28.48%, and three fourth of carriers of hepatitis B virus (HBV) are asymptomatic HBsAg-seronegative with only detectable HBV-DNA in serum. It was observed that only few of patients with diabetes mellitus are treated adequately to HBV. In 1993 in Poland was estimated that in 1.5 million of diabetic patients B-virus was implanted (0.5-0.9 million of patients with no signs of HBV). Diabetes mellitus doubles the risk of increased HBV replication. Increased risk depends on age, sex, body mass and glucose control. Diabetes mellitus increases risk of late presentation of HBV. The natural history of HBV infection in patients with diabetes mellitus is significantly higher than healthy people. Patients with diabetes mellitus and chronic hepatitis B should be treated in the same manner as in patients with chronic hepatitis C. Of important issue is the screening of hepatocellular carcinoma in patients with diabetes mellitus and HBV. In asymptomatic patients with diabetes, HBV DNA should be monitoring in parallel with glycemia and HbA1C level in two or three times per year.idA: the default player in Void Transmission and Symphony of Litanies are the same, so you will have to change the name for the main post player for those two tracks idA: the default player in Void Transmission and
