Get entertainment free of cost on your mobile phones.Q: PHP Wildcard output I have a simple scenario where I'm passing an array of objects from one script to another. Unfortunately, it doesn't allow me to do: MyArray[0].key -> MyArray[0].key MyArray[0] is an object. So, if I could output the key, I'd try to do: echo $output[0]->key; Which outputs: object Object: {key: 0.1, value: "test"} I'm not sure how to get rid of the $ or the Object:. A: As proposed by Timothy says, you can use json_encode() to output a JSON string which is readable by a browser. For example: Also, the result you get from using json_encode is: {"key":0.1,"value":"test"} You can also use some libraries that convert the JSON format to readable PHP. For example, there is a
