READER: In a meeting with US Vice President Joe Biden, Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif didn't give the impression that any agreement between Iran and six world powers could be finalised in just one day, Iranian and Western officials say. In an internet video posted online, Mr Biden said a nuclear deal would be "substantial", diplomatic sources said. He said: "But I think they see the world as you do, that the world will see an Iran that is peaceful." Mr Zarif didn't assure Mr Biden that Tehran wouldn't restart its nuclear enrichment programme, which the West fears could allow it to build atomic weapons. The Obama administration has given Mr Zarif until midnight (1000 GMT) to sign the final deal, but there have been suggestions he could ask for more time. New details Mr Biden met Mr Zarif as he travels to Oman and Baghdad. Mr Biden was due to meet Omani ruler Sultan Qaboos, who has brokered an earlier understanding between the West and Iran, and Iraqi leader Nouri al-Maliki. In a reference to Iran, Mr Biden said: "This agreement has the potential to bring an end to the threat of a nuclear-armed Iran." READER: "Iran has always been the focus of the President's foreign policy and we are hopeful that the deal can be concluded, in part because of the shared
